MRTA grant studied at special meeting

Elk Point Town Council met with representatives of the Elk Point Golf and Country Club, Recreation Board, Tourism Action Committee and Historical Society on Monday evening to discuss the many uses to which a $66,666 capital grant and $13,333 yearly operational grant approved under the Municipal Recreation and Tourism Areas Grant Program could best be allocated.

The initial application for the grant was made in 1987 with further development of the recreation land in mind, but suggestions made in the media at the time its approval was announced that the funding would be used to develop the mural park prompted the Town to inquire if some of the funding could be used for this purpose. The consultant appointed to assist Elk Point with the application and implementation of the grant told the Town that the sum could, indeed, be split up for use on a number of projects, if those projects pertain to recreation and tourism. The consultant advised the Town that once the desired projects had been determined, they should be prioritized. All projects submitted for inclusion would be subject to approval by MLA John Drobot.

All four groups will be meeting in the near future, and were advised to list potential projects in order of importance and to submit these to the Town for further discussion at Council's September 11 meeting. Uses for the funding range from construction of tennis courts at the recreation land to development of an in-town overnight camping facility.

Mayor Bruce Kleeberger noted that other funding sources are available for the development of the mural park, with grants available from federal and provincial sources for projects of this type.

Groups which did not attend Monday night's meeting are also invited to contact Administrator Pat Vincent at the Town Office if they have projects to be included in the process of prioritization.

Representatives of the Golf and Country Club also discussed with Council the Club's earlier proposal that their $3000 annual lease payment

Dewberry Historical Society was presented with a $2179 grant toward publication of their local history book through the New Horizons Program, by Deputy Prime Minister Don Mazankowski. Vice President Bob Gray accepted the grant on behalf of the Society, while President Gerald Holmen (left) and Treasurer Neal Jones looked on. Mazankowski noted the importance of 'looking at the past...to tap valuable historical information and document it for future generations.'

Local youths win

Among the numerous medal winners from all areas of northeast Alberta who came back victorious from the Alberta Summer Games in Brooks, Alberta, earlier this month were four young people from the Elk Point and Heinsburg areas.

Clayton Holthe and Tyson Stafford were part of the St. Paul Boys 12 to 14 Fastpitch Softball team which won the silver medals in that event. (See article in this issue.)

Amy Hawkins of Elk Point won the Bronze in Junior I Girls Singles Tennis, while Corey Twarog of Heinsburg was part of the North East Alberta Boys Volleyball team which also took the Bronze medals.

Congratulations to these fine young athletes on their achievements.

Silver medals for youths

As we travelled home from Brooks, host of the 1989 Alberta Summer Games, our hearts were filled with pride for our two young athletes, Clayton Holthe and Tyson Stafford. They were part of the St. Paul Softball-Fastpitch team that travelled down to participate in the games and come home with the Silver Placing.

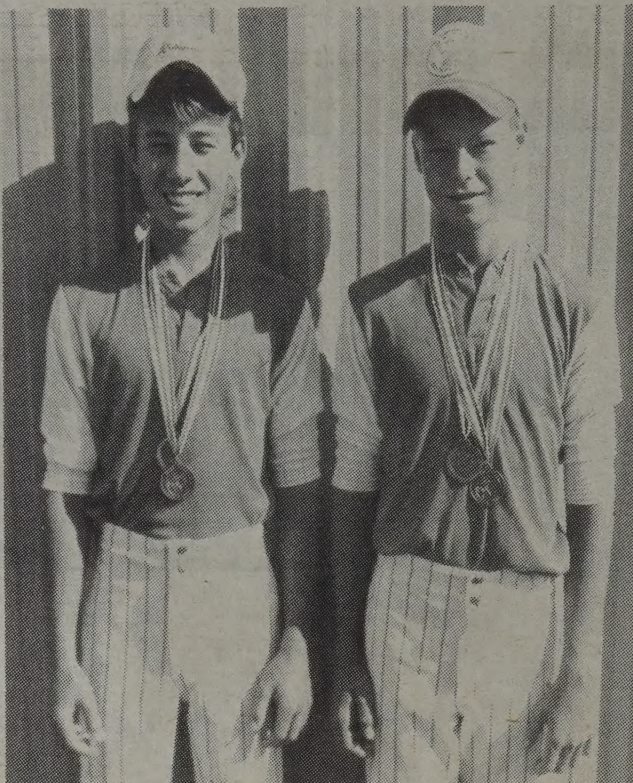

Back in June, the boys were asked by Conrad Jean, from St. Paul, to be pitchers for the team. What a great opportunity it was for the boys to participate with the rest of the fine young athletes from St. Paul and Glendon. After winning the Zone Playoffs in Lloydminster, they were off to Brooks. They came up undefeated against Hinton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Hythe. Their final game was against Edmonton and it was a close game, tied to the last inning, but someone has to win and someone has to lose and Edmonton went home with the Gold.

Our hats go off to the coaching and managing staff, Conrad Jean, Robert Jean and Bill Hall for their fairness, encouragement and coaching ability that brought the team home with their Silver Victory. A big thanks must go out to the other boys from St. Paul and Glendon who befriended our boys from Elk Point and welcomed them to the team.

Aaron Boucher - St. Paul, Armand Boucher - St. Paul, Vernon Burton - St. Paul, Jason Conrad - St. Paul, Kelvin Hall - St. Paul, Daniel Jean - St. Paul, Gerald Jean - St. Paul, Micheal Joly - St. Paul, Scotty Koehn - Glendon, David Krueckl - St. Paul, David Pirnak - Glendon, Doug Pirnak - Glendon, Paul Plaquin - Glendon.

Congratulation to these boys and to our two young pitchers, Clayton and Tyson. YOU ARE ALL WINNERS.

Hilltop Cafe

Hilltop Cafe included in restaurant guide

The owners and management at the Hilltop Cafe in Elk Point, Alberta are proud to announce their restaurant has been included in the 1989 Edition of "Where to Eat in Canada".

"Where to Eat in Canada" has been published for the past nineteen (19) years and is written for restaurant consumers, people who want to know where they can get a good meal and how to get there.

Anne Hardy, the author of this book, has travelled across the country and stopped in urban and rural areas where people like yourself stop to eat and sleep. She has graded each restaurant according to price and quality.

What does she say about the Hilltop Cafe? She states "Elk Point is twenty miles east of St. Paul and 160 miles east of Edmonton. The place looks like a greenhouse inside, but when they're not watering plants the cooks are hard at work in the kitchen, where they make everything from scratch. They have first class roast beef and wonderful stuffed potatoes. The prime ribs are blackened Cajun-style and the vegetables are all fresh. Then there are some nice cream pies and an excellent mud pie.

Come down and see for yourself. Your hosts Martin and Ilse Kopat would be pleased to serve you in the restaurant: Monday to Friday, 6:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m., and Saturday & Sunday, 10:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m., and the lounge: Monday - Saturday, 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. Amex, Mastercard and Visa accepted.

The Slough and I

By Marilyn J. Cochrane

Our farm has two large sloughs. This caused problems with fencing our sheep, as both sloughs are on the fence lines between our neighbour's quarters and ours.

Our answer to keeping sheep in was to use an electric fence on the page wire and barbed wire fences. Depending on soil moisture levels and what part of the sheep's anatomy touched the live wire, the electric fence ranged from totally useless to completely effective.

Bill and I constructed large portable fence sections, much like gates which could be moved into place at the end of the wire fence leading into the slough. They extend twenty feet into the water. This seemed sufficient to keep the sheep in.

On one occasion when Bill was working off the farm, it fell to me to keep the fences in repair. This was a fairly easy job tightening wires and closing any openings where the little devils had pushed through, under, over or around on their never ending quest to be 'on the other side'.

This might be a good place for one of my favorite sheep jokes. If you have two hundred sheep and one goes under the fence, how many are left in the corral? Answer - None, if one goes they all go! How true.

As I was doing my duty checking fences, I came to the end of the slough fence. What I saw struck horror into my heart. Sheep tracks, lots of sheep tracks, in the mud, around the end of the fence.

I tracked the miserable beasts down the road and into the neighbour's pasture field. There, looking like Mary's little lamb, innocently grazing, stood a hundred or so of our flock. As I forged through the wild rose prickles, visions of lamb chops, sizzling on the barbecue came to mind. I finally circled them and drove the flock home. They went quite willingly, sensing that they would be turning in at the front gate and passing quite close to the garden.

They picked up speed as they neared the gate. I tried to pick up speed, unsuccessfully. When I finally staggered into the yard, there they were. Daintily sampling a little of this, a little of that, doing a good imitation of patrons at an "all you can eat" salad bar.

Later, after locking the sheep in the corral, I proceeded to repair the slough fence. Gathering my fencing tool - yes, Virginia, there is something called a fencing tool - assorted staples and nails, I headed out to the slough.

I should perhaps mention that I'm not the bravest person in the world when it comes to things that live in sloughs. Things that live in sloughs tend to be slimy, blood-sucking little horrors that are lurking behind rotting vegetation waiting for my body heat to activate them into a feeding frenzy.

The big fence section was laying down in the water. No problem, I would simply pick up the twenty foot section out of sucking, clinging muck and support it with one hand while I picked up two ten foot poles and braced it with the other hand. I'm sure Bill could have done it with no trouble at all. In fact, later I think he did mention something about doing it the easy way. However, there I was in full view of the road covered in swamp muck wrestling with all this lumber.

I finally stood it up and somewhat braced. It occurred to me that by a method of bracing and wiring, I could attach the poles more securely to the wire fence.

Standing in mud and water almost to my knees, I grabbed the wire with my right hand while picking up the water soaked support log with my other hand.

Sometime later, as I lay on my back in the slough, regarding the heavens and watching the red-winged blackbirds, I remembered that this wasn't just an ordinary wire fence, this was an ELECTRIC wire fence.

They say that your life flashes before your eyes when you are drowning. Well, when you are electrified and laying in a slough, your husband's life flashes before your eyes. Especially interesting are the parts of it that haven't happened yet, but will as soon as he gets home.

MRTA grant discussed be renegotiated. The Golf Club feels that the developments they have made on the recreation land are of substantial benefit to the town, as the facilities encourage visitors to come to Elk Point. The delegation pointed out that the Club has paid for all course maintenance and has not asked the Town for financial aid to do this. A $120,000 ABCD grant and substantial club donations were spent by the Town on construction of the ball diamonds, with some of the grant funds also going toward development of hiking trails and clearing land for campsites at the recreation land.

Council agreed 5 votes to work on a fair and equitable use policy for the recreation land, and to defer the Golf Club's 1989 lease payment until such time as this has been done.

The end is near

A radio report earlier this week has told us that the world will end on Friday, September 1. While this is no doubt no more accurate than an earlier prediction that a tidal wave would inundate Vancouver during the last week of July, we are sure of one thing: the summer holidays are about to end.

Back in June, we looked forward to seemingly endless summer--week after week to soak up the sun, catch fish, go camping, swim, water ski, ride horseback or bikes, attend family reunions, fairs, rodeos and ball tournaments, to travel far or near on summer vacations, or simply to laze in the shade.

And now--there are just nine days left before September arrives! Where has the time gone?

Hopefully, you found time to do all the fun things you had planned, and even to do those less fun, but still important, things like painting the fence, trimming the hedge, building a garage, or fixing the roof. It won't be long, although we hate to be the bearers of discouraging words, before autumn winds start to swirl the fallen leaves around, and the nights become nippy.

All manner of summer activities are winding down--the Library's summer reading programs, the summer recreation programs, summer Bible schools--as the time to get set for fall approaches. Stores are filled with school supplies and warmer clothes, and school bus drivers are getting their big yellow conveyances tuned up ready for the big day.

The end is near, all right--the end of another long, hot summer. Let's get set to enjoy a colorful and invigorating fall--it's just around the corner!

Waterfall Wonders...

Alberta Trails - Part Two

More stones turned

By Irene Magnusson

We had taken several maps, and picked up more at the border crossing, for this motor journey into the new-to-me gigantic wilderness of the Northwest Territories. The most useful for our purposes was the Official Explorers Map, printed by TravelArctic, in 1983. It is dotted with numbers, and an explanation of them printed in a sidebar, and lists most of the waterfalls we saw. The new maps presumed one would mostly be interested in fishing and camping, so have those facilities listed, but doesn't mention the waterfalls. So I was glad to have the old map along, which I had found in my Uncle Harold's effects after he passed on, a souvenir of his trip to the Nahanni area some years ago.

It was getting late, but certainly not dark, as we passed through the village of Enterprise, the conjunction of Highways #1 and #2, NWT. We went on the 20 or so miles, to Hay River. We checked a few places for a room, but found no vacancies. There was, however, a nice supper available at Diane's Restaurant, and it was still fully daylight when we left, about 10:30 p.m.

Now I was to get my first glimpse of the grey restless waters of Great Slave Lake. We drove down to a deserted beach, white sand piled high with drift logs before us, and the great curling waves of dark muddy water, stretching as far as the eye could see to left and right, their white-capped rage pouring in towards us with thunderous constant roar. It is such a large lake, and the churning waters must pick up a lot of mud, for the waves were so dark and angry looking they seemed to pile high along the shore.

I can't think of anything more wild and beautiful, all that tremendous energy and sound, lifting huge logs like toothpicks to fling them against the already thickly strewn beach. We located the restrooms, unrolled the sleeping bags and settled down in the van, a whole beach to ourselves, and the soothing lullaby of the roaring waves a hundred feet away. I slept like a log, unmoving.

In the morning, Mel and I, and the little dog, whose name seems to be "Pooch", wandered the beach a bit, the waves now less thunderous, the polished logs taking on odd shapes, one becoming a deer with giant antlers, bobbing up and down behind a huge imbedded log. There was a length of steel cable snaking across the sand. I paced off about 100 feet, then saw it curled for at least that length again, to disappear under a pile of driftwood.

I marveled that Mel had put his boat into these turbulent waters, last summer, and survived, but he had enjoyed it, and only wished for a larger boat. I found one clam shell, the only one I saw on this trip.

When Aline awoke, we went back into Hay River and had breakfast at the Caribou Inn, pancakes and eggs. Mel went to wash off the layer of clay the van was encased in, after our drive in yesterday's rain, while Aline and I looked for film - and as always, pins for my collection, both of which we found. Hay River is a goodsize town, population about 3000, and boasts one skyscraper plus a bright purple school complex, both quite attractive. We drove to the harbour, and looked at some boats, some quite large, as they need to be to cross that vast inland sea.

We were soon off on our way, pavement back to Enterprise, where we turned onto the gravelled (and dusty) road toward our next waterfall, the Lady Evelyn Falls, on the Kakisa River. This is a broad river, flowing from Kakisa Lake (which we didn't see), and sports a series of falls, Lady Evelyn being the main one. This is high, wide and handsome, a giant semi-circle carved from the rock, quite even, and the curtain of water sports a rainbow at all times when the sun shines down. Here, along the wide gravelly shore, a lone fisherman cast out into the flattening water just below the churning suds, and said he often came there to fish.

After walking some distance along the shore, we climbed back up the long row of steps to the campsite, then down another series, to the railroad lookout point stationed above the falls. For my curiosity bone, I counted 51 steps, plus another 118 on the second path, all built for my security and convenience (and for others') just so I could enjoy this terrific scene, to gaze out over the tumbling water, across at the white chalky-looking walls beyond, and the sparkling rainbow below. (Thanks!)

Up-stream from the Lady Evelyn falls are two lesser falls, one above the other, where the river drops only perhaps 15 feet at each leap, as compared to the 50 foot plunge of the main falls. The river is estimated at 300 feet wide in the falls area.

After lunching at the neat, clean campsite, we went on, coming to Fort Providence, where there is a ferry for crossing the wide Mackenzie River. We had about a 20 minute wait, so walked about. There are long plank slides embedded in the bank, used for hauling the ferry boat out in winter, or for summertime repairs. One large boat rested high up on the ways, while another plied the river. Aline and I climbed the breakwater, built high along the dock, to watch the ferry proceed back across the half-mile or more of the river's width. The ferry, which carries possibly ten vehicles, is tall and white, with flags of Canada and the NWT proudly fluttering, and goes very fast.

Back on the dusty road, we were glad to find trucks are working to sprinkle water, slurped up from the many sloughs or scoopouts which appear along the way. These dust-free sections allow for passing, and as a rest for the nerves, which can get edgy when a wall of dust faces you every time you meet a truck or any vehicle, hanging like white smoke.

There is a Bison Sanctuary extending for some 60 or 70 miles along the west side of the Great Slave Lake, but we were not to see any of its inhabitants. What we did see were miles of spruce and aspens, much more scrubby in size, and roadsides bright with the pink and gold and white of fireweed, goldenrods, and yarrow, with here and there some tamaracs and jackpines. Another bush became abundant, the yellow-flowered potentilla, or cinquefoil, a shrub about two feet high, with lots of yellow flowers - and which my plant book tells me grows "everywhere in Alberta" but which I have only seen in the wild in the Cypress Hills, and lots of them in people's gardens.

Feeling a bit low on gas, as we covered the miles north to take us around the long bay of the North Arm of the huge lake, we decided to go to the principally Indian town of Rae. Here, after some searching, and a bit of coaxing, we were able to fill up. We are seeing much rougher terrain now, after the many miles of table-flat land, and outcroppings of a pinkish rock show between the trees and scrub. Going south now, the last leg of our route to Yellowknife, the outcroppings are larger, and we see the road has been surveyed to bypass these huge rocks where possible. Some have been blasted away.

Atop many of these roadside crags, are the little man-shaped stone piles, called "Inukshuks", a typically Inuit marking. The pavement returns, is welcomed and we are soon seeing the huge mine workings of Yellowknife, with the city beyond. Next week, Yellowknife and beyond.

Fantastic fairs

The profusion of fine quality exhibits at the fairs in our area is once again a reminder of the many talents and skills we find in the midst of our communities.

Letter to the Editor

Fan mail

Dear Editor:

Being formerly from Elk Point, I thought I would drop a line and let you know how much I enjoy the paper.

It's like getting a letter from home, hearing the old familiar names we used to know out there.

I guess a person never really forgets where they grow up.

I especially like Irene Magnusson's articles. She has a real sense of humor.

Keep up the good work.

Yours sincerely,

Mrs. K. Skinner

It is also gratifying to see that another generation of fair contributors is on the way up. Children's sections this year featured everything from cardboard sculptures to button collections to scenes made out of vegetables, showing effort and imagination put forth by the youngest exhibitors.

Congratulations to all the winners, and thanks to all who supported their communities by taking part.

Reform Party to pick candidate

The Reform Party will hold a nominating meeting on August 28, in Red Deer, to select its candidate for the upcoming Alberta Senate Election.

The nominating meeting will be held at the Red Deer Lodge, Salon A, 4311 - 49th Avenue, starting at 7:00 p.m.

Seeking the Party nomination are Calgary lawyer, Vic Burstall; Edmonton lawyer, Robert (Bob) Matheson; Calgary lawyer, Murray Smith; and, retired armed forces lieutenant general and businessman, Stan Waters.

There may be more nominees, as the nomination deadline is 5:00 p.m., on August 21.

A late-July nomination meeting date was postponed because of a lack of hard evidence that the provincial Tories would actually hold the Senate election in concert with the October Municipal election.

But with statements made by Premier Don Getty and recent developments among provincial Tory organizers, the Reform Party is confident that the Senate election will now take place this October.

"We feel we've got something to say, and we feel that what we have to say on such issues as Senate reform and Meech Lake are in tune with the majority of Albertans," says Reform Party president, Diane Ablonczy.

"This Senate election could very well turn into a referendum on the Provincial Government's stance on Meech Lake and Senate reform," says Party leader, Preston Manning.

He says the Provincial Government's support of Meech Lake as a means to achieving Senate reform is naive and misguided.

"There is a contradiction in Premier Getty supporting both Meech Lake and the Triple-E Senate, any province could use its Meech Lake veto power to veto any meaningful Senate reform," says Manning.

He adds that he relishes the opportunity to argue the merits of alternative approaches to Senate reform during the upcoming Senate election.

"We're in it to win, and we feel we can win," says Manning.

The Reform Party's Task Force on the Senate election reported on July 10 that the majority of Reform Party Constituency Associations favor the Party's participation in the election.

The Party is in the process of registering under Alberta electoral laws for the sole purpose of running in the Senate election, according to guidelines set out in the Senatorial Selection Act.

Distinguished Visitors...

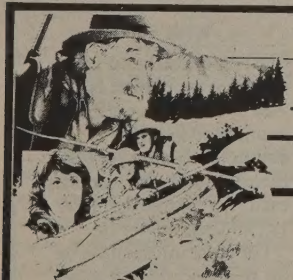

Grenada's Governor General Sir Paul Scoon and his lovely wife (right) have spent a restful vacation as guests of Dr. and Mrs. Keith Mc Neilly of Elk Point during the past week. The Governor General has held his post for the past eleven years, and was instrumental in summoning American aid during the invasion of Grenada. Granadians are grateful for his efforts and have been successful in persuading him to stay in office for another term. Shown with the visitors is hostess Irene McNeilly.

A collection of memories

By Mildred Dunham

Pets On Parade...

A sheep, a goat and a tiny pony wait patiently for the judges' verdict.

Back-to-school

An expensive time!

With those long, lazy days of summer here at last it can be very hard to remember that September will soon come around again. Unfortunately, unless we plan well ahead for those back-to-school expenses, September will be hard on our family finances too. Here is a reminder of the costs we have to budget for.

SCHOOL FEES

These are the fees charged by most schools at the beginning of the year for course materials, textbooks rentals and so on. The amounts you will have to pay depend on the ages of your children and the courses and options that they take. Fees start at around $25-$40 for elementary school children, while fees for a student in senior high could cost $100 or more. Add to this the charges for any extra services that might be necessary, such as lunch room supervision, field trips and that first month's bus pass.

Be ready for a jump in costs if your child is moving from the elementary to the junior high level, or from junior to senior high.

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

These are the materials a student will need for the year, and include pens, writing paper, pencil crayons, duotangs, calculators, binders and maths instruments. These items go on sale at the end of August. Some schools buy wholesale and sell supplies to parents at the beginning of term at excellent prices.

At the end of June many teachers, especially in the elementary grades, hand out lists of the supplies required for the next year. If you don't have a list from the school you should make one yourself. Include only the essential items. Check your child's school bag for any of this year's supplies which could be used again. Then compare the advertised sale prices before heading out to the stores. For greatest value, avoid 'trendy' items. For instance, binders decorated with pictures of the newest superhero or TV cartoon character are often much more expensive than plain binders. Children can personalize their binders with stickers, cutouts, decals or their own art work.

FALL AND WINTER CLOTHES

Now is the time to check your children's clothes closet for outgrown clothes and possible hand-me-downs. Put aside clothes that require dry-cleaning or mending. Consider exchanging outgrown clothes with other families in your area. Then make a list of clothes that your children will need for the coming school year. Despite the pressures put on us by advertisers at this time of year, we do not need to buy these all at once! Pre-season sales of winter clothes are held at the end of July and the beginning of August. If your child needs a new winter coat or jacket, compare prices carefully. You may get better value later in the season. Second-hand stores often stock good used children's clothing at bargain prices.

What's news at the library?

Summer has flown by at the library and already we are in our last week of the Summer Reading Program. Preschoolers, be sure to come for our final party Friday, August 25, at 10:00 a.m. and participate in the fun and games. Also, parents feel free to stop in and view the Summer Reading Program's arts and crafts display we have at the library.

Last Friday, the preschoolers took part in the "Sleepy Storytime" and some came dressed in their P.J.'s, brought favorite blankets or teddy bears, and listened to bedtime stories. The elementary program created vegetable sculpture and some of the older kids produced a puppet show for the younger ones, which was a great success.

Our Thursday movie this week will be "Baby, The Secret of the Lost Legend", August 24 at 2:00 p.m. Next week we will be showing one more movie before school starts, on August 31, so watch this column for details.

The library has recently purchased a large number of books by Alberta authors and/or published in Alberta. This purchase was made possible by a matching grant from the Alberta Foundation for the Literary Arts.

Dewberry holds successful mini-fair

A full day of fulfilled activities helped to chase the clouds away from Dewberry last Wednesday, as residents of the village and surrounding areas enjoyed the annual Mini Fair.

Early morning showers subsided in good time, leaving only a few puddles along the route of the long and colorful parade. The parade was led by an R. C. M. P. vehicle, followed by a horse-drawn antique milk wagon carrying members of the Royal Canadian Legion. Deputy Prime Minister Don Mazankowski and Mrs. Mazankowski and Dewberry Mayor Gertrude Blacklock travelled the route in gleaming 'fifties vintage convertibles.

A number of antique and collectible conveyances were part of the parade, from an antique firetruck to a Model A Ford, from an early transport truck to an Edsel. Flower and streamer decked floats were entered by various groups and businesses. Dewberry Lion L's entry celebrated 25 years of community service, the local Historical Society urged the community to become part of the upcoming history book, and the Horticulture Club invited parade watchers to visit the bench show and other fair activities. Models of the Pool elevator, Clandonald Seed Cleaning Plant and a tiny hand-operated backhoe enlivened other floats.

Horsedrawn vehicles included a chuckwagon carrying Calgary Stampede and Cheyenne Frontier Days champion teamster Buddy Bensmiller and his father Allan Bensmiller, another well known NPCA veteran driver, as well as other frontier type conveyances. They were followed by a large contingent of decorated bicycles, which had earlier taken part in a decorated bicycle contest, and numerous horseback riders, one accompanied by a pack mule. Bringing up the rear of the parade was a goat-drawn covered wagon, with a large cat as passenger.

Following the parade, everyone flocked to the community hall to enjoy a lunch served by the Senior Citizens, before going to view the Show 'n' Shine in the Co-op parking lot, the children's races in the school ground, the gymkhana at the sports grounds, the bake sale and bench show in the arena, and the horseshow tournament and frog races nearby.

Effie Anderson of Marwayne and Marlene Brown of Dewberry tied for this year's Grand Aggregate award. A special award for Best Overall Quilt went to Marion Espetweidt. Patricia Holmen was the Junior Overall Winner.

The day wound up with a pancake supper, hosted by local UFA agent Meredith Whiteside, and an enjoyable evening of bingo.

Gorgeous Gladiolus...

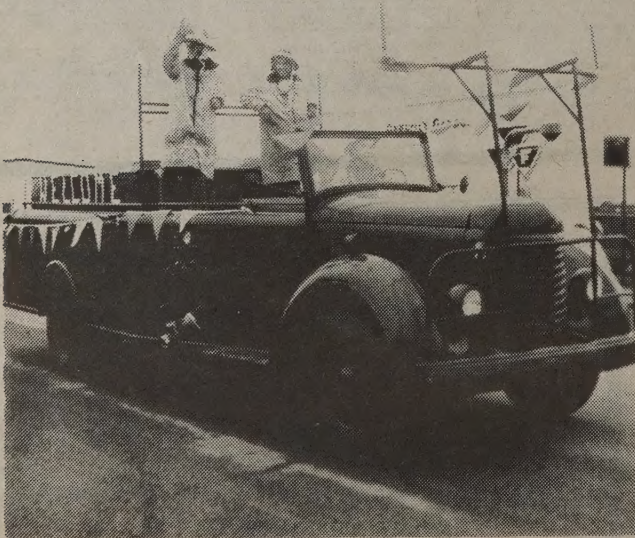

Shining Examples...

Of the automobile manufacturers' art vied both the People's Choice and Farthest Distance trophies at the Dewberry Mini Fair Show'n'Shine. Larry and Carol Hines won trophy for the Oldest Car.

Vegetable Adventures...

Dewberry's youngsters used considerable creativity to construct these scenes from garden produce.

Where's The Fire???

Dewberry's volunteer firemen joined the parade in this vintage vehicle, dating back to the days when firetrucks were still red.
